

RINGCUBE APPOINTS VICE PRESIDENT OF WORLDWIDE SALES

RingCube Technologies names former PortAuthority Technologies and Juniper Networks sales executive Ron DiBiase as its VP of worldwide sales

Santa Clara, Calif., August 28, 2007 – RingCube Technologies Inc. the leading provider of the secure, managed digital workspace, today announced appointment of Ron DiBiase as the company's vice president of worldwide sales. DiBiase is an accomplished sales and marketing executive in the area of network and security solutions. DiBiase will leverage his more than 24 years of high tech sales, channel management, and marketing experience to drive partnerships and customer deployments of RingCube's MojoPac Enterprise Suite, secure virtual desktop software into the enterprise, government, and service provider markets. DiBiase is also responsible for building a world-class sales team.

"Ron brings the right combination of skills and experience managing direct and channel oriented sales programs to drive the expansion of the MojoPac Enterprise Suite," said Shan Appajodu, co-founder and CEO, RingCube Technologies. "His insights and strategic vision will help to maintain the tremendous market momentum we have seen during our launch of the secure virtual desktop into the enterprise. The enterprise sales team led by Srihari Kumar has done a terrific job getting early customer wins and helping define the enterprise product. Ron is the right person to scale the sales efforts while Srihari will focus on business development and alliances to take the business to the next level."

Prior to RingCube, DiBiase served as Vice President Worldwide Sales at PortAuthority Technologies before the company was acquired by Websense. At PortAuthority, DiBiase successfully built and managed the sales and customer support teams attacking the developing information leak prevention market. He and the team successfully doubled revenues and the number of enterprise customers in less than 6 months. In addition, DiBiase has held senior executive positions with Juniper Networks, Redline Networks, Planet web, Shoretel, and Nortel Networks, where he consistently delivered strong revenue growth through new customer acquisition, while expanding existing customer deployments.

“RingCube presents a unique opportunity to transform the way businesses manage, deploy and secure enterprise desktops,” said DiBiase. “This is a tremendous game-changing opportunity, offering customers a truly unique solution to address their mobility, business continuity, and manageability challenges. The MojoPac Enterprise Suite will significantly benefit our customers by making their employees more productive and secure, while reducing their IT management costs.”

Additional information on the MojoPac Enterprise Suite, including MojoStation, MojoDrive and MojoNetwork is available online at www.mojopac.com/enterprise.
